PROUD TO BE PART OF THE COMMUNITY.
Commitment to the Environment

For decades, Timber Products Company has led the way in protecting and managing one of our country’s most valuable renewable resources: the forest.

Thanks to our integrated structure, the entire process is done in an environmentally responsible way.

Environmental Responsibility

- More than 114,000 acres of company-owned timberlands near Mt. Shasta, CA are managed by affiliate company, Michigan-California Timber Company. Certified under some of the strictest standards in the world by the Sustainable Forestry Initiative® (SFI).
- Committed to integrating the management, harvesting and reforesting of trees into useful products. This includes conservation of soil, air and water quality; wildlife and fish habitat; and aesthetics.
- From Registered Professional Foresters and professional wildlife and fisheries managers, to corporate officers and employees, we know that our forestlands are a tremendous resource that must be managed responsibly today, and for generations to come.

Committed to Corporate Stewardship

Timber Products Company has a presence in a number of cities across America. We believe strong communities make for great places to do business and it is our responsibility to be an active corporate citizen in each community we work with. This is exhibited in many ways.

• Proudly offers all employees a competitive wage and benefit package. With more than 1,200 team members and an average tenure of more than 15 years, a quality work environment makes for productive community members.

• Encourage employees to participate in community events, such as United Way’s Day of Caring, and often allow them to do so on company time.

• Support events and activities that our employees are involved in and enhance the general well-being of a community, such as Little League baseball and the performing arts.

• Testify before governing bodies on issues that are germane to direct business interests, as well as to foster exceptional government at the local, state and national levels.

Timber Products Company continually strives to improve upon every aspect of community involvement across the nation, always with the goal of making the places we live also great places to work.

Manufacturing Overview

Timber Products Company offers one of the most comprehensive ranges of products and services in the wood products industry. Best known for hardwood plywood, Timber Products is one of the largest material suppliers to the nation’s kitchen and bath cabinet, furniture, store fixture and display, and architectural millwork industries.
